LESSONS FROM KOREAN WAR

of us, including highly-placed military men, had tended to forget—that there can be two kinds of war.

Up to the time that North Korea sent her troops pouring ticular emphasis in this country. across the 38th parallel, we had been thinking in terms of the "big" intercontinental war. This, if it came, was to be war on an unprecedented scale and of an unprecedented type. It was to be a war of amazing machines which would wreak death and to be a war of amazing machines which would wreak death and extreme right wing press helped destruction on a huge scale and at vast distances. A button this along by taking up the warwould be pushed, and an atom bomb or a guided missile would be on its way toward the target. It would be a war of science and technology. Some thought it might be a war in which a decision would be reached without any ground action at all, and without opposing troops coming face to face.

No one can say that these concepts are wrong-they might hold true in the "big" war the world now fears. But it and maintain order in the face of is clear that they do not apply in Korea.

In Korea we have a war in which the traditional, relatively simple weapons are all-important. The man with a gun in his hand must do the fighting. It is the most difficult and dismal sort of war imaginable. Great troop movements of the sort that the Chicago Tribune together with an attack by Wilford I. King, of the that took place in Europe in the last war are impossible. Everything is based upon the small unit—the battalion, the company, the platoon, even the squad. The importance of the individual solder is supreme-if one man fails, disaster to many may follow. In this, the war is comparable to the jungle operations against the Japanese during the island-hopping period that preceded the Empire's surrender.

We are fighting an enemy whose habits and thoughts are tion of the Truman administration incomprehensible to the western mind. The cruel fanaticism in rushing to take off the excess of the Orient finds its perfect reflection in the Korean soldier. II had ended. He can sleep anywhere. A handful of the coarest food sustains him. Supply, as we know it in the American army, is unknown to him.

Worst of all, it is clear, we had not planned for this war. Our eyes were elsewhere—on Formosa, Iran, Europe—even Problem as our minds were considering the other kind of war. And so, in every way, we were completely surprised.

The lesson we have learned is a grim one. We must be A CEREMONY OF THE JEWISH prepared for any kind of war-and for war almost anywhere. We have never faced a harder task.

A NEVER-ENDING JOB

It was an unpleasant picture of the national situation which Major General Hershey drew in his testimony before the Appropriations Committee of the House of Paragraphs. the Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives. He was certain, he said, that "we could not get by" with the 185,000 men whose draft this year has been authorized by Congress

Inasmuch as many in the present group of selectees will not be inducted until sometime in 1951 this statement by General Hershey means that regardless of the outcome of the war in Korea, the U.S. is now committed to the services the worshippers exchange with each other the greating. "May in Korea, the U. S. is now committed to the creation and permanent maintenance of a great standing army.

While the immediate task is to end the war in Korea on American terms it is now clear that victory there will not be festive family meal. At the head of enough to bring a general peace. The Soviet is not thus easily the table lie two breads baked in the shape of a ladder and a crown.

Some are destined harrassing the free nations of the world and of so weakening their economies that they may fall a prey to communism.

The U.S. must, then, be prepared for the worst and one way to that end is through military strength—a strength that includes adequate manpower for the armed services and superiority in all kinds of equipment. This, because of Russia, is the unhappy fate in store for Americans.

DEEP YAWN DEPARTMENT

University Press, undertook to find out what were considered the 10 most boring classics. The announcement, with Bunyan's lance of peace, and the necessity of "Pilgrim's Progress" on top of the list, has been creating quite a stir in literary circles.

The balloting among the 4,000 readers of this literary importance of always remember paper issued by Columbia included quite a range of booksfrom the Old Testament to Kinsey. At least 17 of Shakespeare's a fleeting shadow, a dream that plays were voted boring, although the bard did not make the 10 "most" list.

Although one classicist has complained that the poll itself was the most pointless survey ever made, many readers will disagree-for the very important reason that every one of the 10 "most boring books" is required reading in many high school English courses. Two outstanding examples: "Ivanhoe" by Scott and "Silas Marner" by Eliot.

Why students must still plow through Spenser's "Faerie Queene" or even Boswell's "The Life of Samuel Johnson" is a question that teachers may some day have to stand up and

Striking Parallel

There is a striking parallel in what is happening today. In the present crisis Baruch has urged measures to meet the gravity of the situation, including economic controls on at least a stand-by basis, sufficient to halt inflation defense spending.

For this he is being attacked once again by the same sources. Representative Clare Hoffman of Michigan put in the Congressional Record a derisive editorial from ernment, rebuking Baruch for urging economic controls

It has been quite a while since we had you work some of the brain teasers from Daniel Racioppo's booklet, "Is Your Brain Itchy?" so today is the day.

A motorist drives down hill at 40 miles per hour and up hill at 20 miles per hour. Assuming that he is traveling in a country where he will have to travel up and down hills of equal lengths, how many miles will he have traveled in 3 hours? (Just as he reaches the foot of a hill he immediately begins climbing another. there is no level ground.)

If three stop lights are arranged ¼ mile apart, and so that they will be on the same time for one minute, how fast must a motorist travel to pass each without stopping?

Let's pretend that we are just entering the first grade of school and our mothers are giving us twenty-five cents each day for lunch on school days and an average of ten cents for all other days of the year. Now, let us assume that we are spending at least 5 cents every day of the year foolishly as many boys and girls do, yes, even grown ups. We're going to be different, for beginning from the first day of the first grade we are going to save 5 cents each day until we shall be graduated from high school; winter and summer, Sunday and week days, during school days and vacations. While we are in the 8th grade we decide to days and vacations. While we are in the 8th grade we decide go to college. We buy a paper route and save an average of 50 cents per day for four years. Assuming that we will have saved 5 cents per day for 12 years from our lunch and spending money, and 50 cents per day from newspapers for 4 years, how much money shall we have saved toward college? ## Foolish To Falter On Issue

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21. In the last three weeks the extraordinary conduct of Mr. Jaco Malik, Soviet representative at the United Nations and now presiding over its Security Council, has had one certain effect. A few month ago Mr. Herbert Hoover suggested that the only way to save the United Nations from completely farcical futility was to reorganize, leaving Russia and her subservient satellites out. A good many then though that was too drastic a step. Now, a considerable number have changed

Before the Korean invasion (when the Hoover suggestion was made) as a result of constant and prolonged Russian recalcitrancy the United Nations was in state of almost suspended animation, unable, because of the veto, to take any constructive step toward the great goal of permanent peace. Everybody agreed this was true. The whole non-Communist world resented it. However, various arguments from those who should have known better were made. We must keep Russia in because she might have a change of heart. To throw her out would make it more difficult to negotiate. To provoke her might precipitate the final catastrophe of a general war. It will not do to isolate her. For the sake of its noble aims the United Nations must be kept in-

Well, look at it now! Its position is pitiful and ridiculous. It mortifies and angers the representatives of the free nations of the world. It irritates and baffles the people as a whole. It is impossible to take it seriously. The pious hopes so often enunciated have been obviously hollow ever since, four years ago, the Soviets first revealed the fact they were not there to negotiate or agree on anything-rather the reverse. Today, of course, these hopes sound simply silly. Today the United Nations, whose basic purpose is to outlaw war and crush aggression, is rendered static by a nation the basic purpose of which is just the opposite, which, in defiance of the charter, probably has inspired war in Korea and whose long list of aggressions is documented

For three weeks its Security Council has been humiliatingly com-pelled to listen to the violent tirades of the representative of this nation, Mr. Malik, whose offensive, insulting and mendacious language has not been equaled in any parliamentary body at any time. For three weeks, as someone recently said, this man has vehemently insisted that "war is peace, that self-defense is aggression, that night is day and black is white." This insult to the intelligence by a presumably intelligent man has been an amazing spectacle. In light of the incontrovertible facts it is the most brazen and impudent performance on record. Utterly ignoring the truth it brushes aside the data gathered by the United Nations Commission to Korea, such as the presence of Russian officers training the North Korean Army, the equipment of that army with tanks, artillery and supplies and the flat Russian refusal to permit the commission to make its investigation

There is ample evidence in possession of the United Nations to convict the Soviets of instigating war and planning aggression. Upon this evidence it could be expelled and its ability to frustrate, stultify and nullify ended. No informed man can possibly entertain today any doubt that the Russian purpose is not international co-operation and peace but the conquest of the world, the domination and destruction of every non-Communist country. Surely, the continued membership in the United Nations of this nation is worse than an absurdity. Officially and formally through our President and Secretary of State we have branded her as an aggressor and we have denounced communism as a deadly menace to the free world. To all intents and purposes we are a war with it.

We are spending a hundred million of dollars telling the rest of the world of the evil nature of the Russian purpose and the vicious character of her propaganda. We appropriate billions of dollars to arm ourselves against the third world war we believe she plans. We proclaim in Senate speeches, newspaper editorials and radio prono ments that, because of this nation, we are today in greater peril than ever we have been before. Because of her we are about to impose tremendously increased taxes upon our people and add dangerously to the national debt. Under the circumstances and considering our experience of the past five years, it seems worse than folly to permit this nation to remain in the United Nations, to whose purposes it is utterly opposed and which it deliberately prevents from functioning

What sense does it make to keep playing this game? Is there any thing to be gained by further appeasement and tolerance? What additional risk will be incurred by firm action to end an intolerable state of affairs? The longer we wait the harder it is going to be to get off the hook—the more opportunities for the Soviets to use the United Nations to further their plans and thwart the desire for peace in the hearts of people everywhere. Clearly they do not fit into the family of nations. Clearly they ought to be barred until they become so. It is you've already seen one.

Stockholm is the ideal city in foolish to falter. At least the coarse and contemptuous Mr. Malik

And it is likely to make a difference. Not that there aren't some headaches, too. Many a girl resents the fact that her brother is illowed to do many things which her parents feel aren't wise for her. And there are plenty of quarrels, too. Yet the net result of having brothers is definitely on

Some girls have found brother substitutes in cousins or in neigh-borhood friends. The fact that boys and girls aren't separated as much as they used to be means that close friendships of a fraternal sort may develop. Such friendsort may develop. Three dozen eggs, a loaf of Italian bread and 10 cups of coffee and all this is just a snack before going home to supper says Joseph Copple of 401 West Grant, as he downed this volume of calories on a wager, Saturday afternoon. Slight in build, Joe still has a capacity a wager, Saturday atternoon. Stight in build, Joe Stiff has a capacity for eating. On Friday afternoon, he had the chef of the Gables hotel, where his Saturday eating bout took place, cook him a pound of spaghetti and eight meatballs for a lunch. The best route, according to B J. Hanlon, manager of the New Castle Motor Club is this. Take 224 from New Castle to Lodi, O., then turn left on Route 42. Stay on Route 42 for about 114 miles when it connects with Route 40. Turn right on Route 40 and stay on it to Greenfield, Ind., then turn left on Route 9. Take Route 9 to Shelbyville, Ind., about 15 miles, and at Shelbyville turn right on Route 44 into Franklin, Ind., 18 miles away.

near Camp Atterbury and it has about 8,000 residents. The main entrance to the camp seems to be in the small town of Amity. From Franklin to Amity is about 10 miles over a four lane highway, Route 31.

Near the camp are such small localities as Nineveh, Trafalgar, Edinburg, Taylorsville and not far south of the camp, Columbus, Ind. Indianapolis is about 45 miles north of Camp Atterburty, but the four lane highway 31 connects the camp and the city.

The route suggested by Mr.

Hanlon is not the only route to Camp Atterbury but it seems the best. It keeps the motorist out of such large cities as Akron, Dayton, and Columbus, O.

Fitz wore a toupe into the ring and fooled around with Ross, Russler said, until someone in the audience yelled "Cut loose a little bit, Bob." Russler said Fitz walked over to his wife, who was on the stage, removed and gave her his toupe then cut loose. He was greased lightning and did with Tony as he willed.

Concerning Young Zahniser, Russler said that he always felt that Zahniser had the better of Johnny Kilbane, who later went to the top of the featherweight division. He termed the Battling Terry-Tommy Jones bout in the early "teens" in Humbert hall, the best fight ever held here.
